FIRE IN LONDON.

Great Conflagration in the Warehouse District—Loss $25,000,000.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—One of the most disastrous fires in London's history since the great fire of 1666 broke out in a large block of buildings lying eastward of Aldersgate street, and between that thoroughfare and Red Cross street, just after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The flames were fanned by a strong wind, and were fed by highly inflammable stocks of Christmas fancy goods and flimsy dress materials of all descriptions that filled every floor of the six-story buildings in the old street. Consequently, the conflagration gained headway with surprising rapidity, and was soon far beyond the possibility of being checked by the few engines which were early on the spot. For four hours and a half the flames had their own way, and it was only after more than a hundred engines had worked an hour that the chief of the fire brigade sent out the signal that the fire was under control.

Streets a quarter of a mile in length were involved, 160 great warehouses were destroyed, 300 important firms and hundreds of minor ones were burned out and the losses are estimated as close to $25,000,000. Fortunately no lives were lost nor was any one seriously injured.

The vicarage of St. Giles' Cripplegate, was destroyed and the venerable church was damaged. The latter was built in 1545. It is approached by an archway in Red Cross street, also within the scene of the conflagration, and contains among other things the tomb of John Milton who died in 1674; the tombs of Fox, the martyrologist; Froisher, the voyager, who died in 1794, and Speer, the typographer, who died in 1629. Oliver Cromwell was married in the church August 22, 1630.

GENERAL ORDWAY DEAD.

Explosion at a Hotel After a Brief Illness—His Notorious Daughter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—General Albert Ordway died at 7:15 o'clock last night at the Hoffman house in this city. When death came the general's wife, his sister, Miss Emma Ordway; Dr. Pease, the attending physician, and Lieutenant Vary, a close friend and business associate, were at his bedside.

General Ordway and his wife returned from Europe last Wednesday. They engaged rooms at the Hoffman house. Next day the general was taken sick, and he continued to grow weaker and weaker until 7:15 o'clock last evening, when he died. The general's death was doubtless hastened by the sad and recent events in connection with his wayward daughter, Bettina Gerard, the notorious opera singer. The latter, a complete wreck, was a day or two ago transferred to a private sanitarium from Bellevue hospital. Owing to the pleading of his wife, who had become reconciled to her daughter, General Ordway finally consented to the return of the prodigal and a reunion of the family in Washington was arranged.

General Ordway's death is attributed by the attending physician to jaundice and pleurisy, which developed from a cold contracted in Paris.

Brevet Brigadier General Ordway, who was born in 1843, served with credit and gallantry throughout the civil war, the greater portion of the time with his regiment, the Twenty-fourth Massachusetts infantry.

For gallantry at various times, and because of his ability, he had been successively promoted, until, at 23 years of age he was made brevet brigadier general, being the youngest officer in the service to receive that grade. After being mustered out, General Ordway went into business at Richmond, and about ten years later removed to Washington, where, as commanding officer of the National Guard for a number of years, he brought that organization up to a high standard.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

PROMINENT CITIZENS DO BATTLE AT WACO, TEX.

Two Killed and One Injured—The Mobbing of Editor Brann the Cause of the Duel—Editor of the Times-Herald Killed and His Brother Wounded.

WACO, Texas, Nov. 22.—J. W. Harris, editor of the Waco Times-Herald, and W. A. Harris, his brother, on one side, and Judge G. R. Gerald, a prominent citizen, fought a duel to the death on the street last night at 5 o'clock. W. A. Harris was shot dead. J. W. Harris was wounded fatally, his body being paralyzed and Gerald was shot in the side and may die.

The trouble was the outcome of the mobbing of W. C. Brann, publisher of the Iconoclast. Gerald was an ex-county judge and one of Waco's most prominent citizens. He had written a bitter criticism on Baylor university with reference to the recent mobbing of W. C. Brann, and had filed it with Editor Harris for publication.

Afterward he asked to have his manuscript returned, and became incensed at the editor's delay in complying. Bad feeling resulted and when Judge Gerald was crossing the street at the corner of Fourth and Austin streets at 5 o'clock, Editor Harris came out of a drug store and opened fire upon him. Gerald immediately drew his revolver and returned the fire, hitting Harris in the neck.

Hearing the shooting, W. A. Harris came upon the scene and took a hand in the fusillade, shooting Gerald from behind. Gerald pursued him into the drug store, shooting as he ran. Harris fell to the floor with the words: "You shot me in the back." Gerald emptied the remaining charges in his weapon into the prostrate form of his victim, killing him on the spot, and then left the scene. A little colored boy who stood near was shot in the leg by a stray bullet.

Editor Harris was carried into the drug store by friends. His wife and daughter were notified and were soon at his side. The scene was pitiful, the wife and daughter weeping, while the husband and father lay prostrate, unable to move a muscle of his body, or to speak. His windpipe had been severed by a bullet which injured his spinal column. He was removed to his home, but cannot live.

Judge Gerald was wounded in the neck and side. While serious, his wounds cannot be said to be necessarily fatal. The excitement is very great, and public opinion seems to be divided.

Judge Gerald is an ex-member of the legislature, ex-postmaster of this city, and widely known about the state. He is 65 years of age. He was armed with two revolvers; the Harris brothers each had one. The judge is fearless, and noted as a man quick to resent offense.

J. W. Harris, editor of the Waco, Texas, Times-Herald, who opened the three-cornered duel there last Friday, has died from his wounds.
